

Ew to Awe: Foster Public Appreciation and Conservation of Bugs

At first glance, Danae Wolfe's expertise might seem like macro photography, but the true power of her work lies in her storytelling ability. Through photographic storytelling, Wolfe has captured the attention of global audiences and shed light on a topic of growing concern - the decline of insects. Through charming tales of maternal care and close-up portraits of bugs, she is helping people understand the importance of rethinking the American home landscape.

Cuyahoga County • Department of Public Works
Harvard Ave. Maintenance Yard

2501 Harvard Ave. • Newburgh Heights, OH • 44105
Thursday • April 9 • 6:00pm - 7:30pm

FREE PRE-PAID SOIL TESTING KIT

(while supplies last)

Event is free but registration is required

Register online at www.cuyahogaswcd.org

(click on Events, April 9)

Questions: Amy Roskilly 216.524.6580 ext. 1005

aroskilly@cuyahogaswcd.org

